The Old Post has been archived here's the new stuff Por fin chega á tenda online o KIT de montaxe do noso robot máis vendido. Más de 200 nenas e nenos teñen xa o teñen. Atomos Vibes (KIT) Está composto por un chasis impreso en 3D, un motor, un portapilas, cepillos e algunhas outras cousas para que funcione o robot. O tempo estimado de montaxe son aproximadamente 30 minutos, aínda que o RaspiPablo ten un récord de 3 minutos e medio. Pode montalo -coa axuda dunha persoa adulta- toda a rapazada maior de 8 anos. Hey Anki Fam,Here's an updated version of the Dorian deck for Step 2CK. This is a work-in-progress deck meaning that it is not entirely complete, but I felt I had made enough progress where it could certainly benefit those students taking Step 2 later this summer. The main hurdle of the original Dorian deck was the plethora of duplicates spread about the various subdecks, which was almost unavoidable as u/dorian222 himself alluded to the challenge of keeping up with reviews once a given rotation is over (and by the way, he's right -- it is hard to keep up with reviews during clerkships). Instead, it was easier to simply copy relevant cards over from another subdeck while beginning another rotation. Regardless, I still chose to remove the duplicates and also implement my own hierarchical tagging with many cards being multi-tagged. I've kept the subdeck structure from the original Dorian albeit with some aesthetic changes that fits my taste. As previously stated, this deck is not complete since I am myself currently going through third-year clerkships and still have my IM rotations coming up, and I expect to add more additions and edits as I go through UW/AMBOSS and likely won't publish my final version until after I take Step 2CK in June. With that being said, here are some important points to keep in mind when using this deck (in no specific order):As of 02/24/20, this deck has 11,490 cards. Color scheme is based of Shamim. I've also cleaned up the cards as best as I could, there were tons of unnecessary spaces or other aesthetically unappealing aspects to some cards I came saw. While deleting duplicates, I would always compare the duplicates and make sure that whatever card was the final one would retain any unique images from duplicates that were to be deleted.I've added about ~300 or so cards from UW and AMBOSS. If I got a question wrong on UW, I would search for keywords to find the associated card for the question that I got wrong. If no card was found, I created a card covering that topic. If I got a question right, I would leave that card unsuspending. As such, there are many cards in this deck that I have not edited or seen. I don't think that is a problem, but I intend to give all cards one look-over before I publish my final version in the summer.I'm going through the AMBOSS question bank as well and will add as many cards from that question bank as possible.I've added cards to a few OME videos that had no cards from the Dorian deck, including Nephrology and Dermatology. These cards are from Quizlet that I have imported and checked the card quality before adding them. That being said, I still have some card sets for a few remaining videos that I still have to quality check so this is currently incomplete.One minor deficiency to mention: I ended up deleting all the duplicates that were within the Surgery deck. For example, if a card was duplicated under Surgery OME and Surgery UW, I deleted the UW card and kept the OME one; anytime there was a duplicate between an OME card and another card, the other card was deleted; if it was between Emma Holiday and another card, the other card was deleted. I did not, however, delete any duplicates that were between Surgery and other disciplines, like IM. Surgery was my first rotation with a shelf and at that time I did not think about doing an overhaul. I intend to go back and fix this but it won't happen until after I take Step 2. Again, I don't view this is a big deal, and if it was I would have addressed it for myself by now. So basically if I found duplicates that were between different surgery cards (eg. OME and Emma), while I copied the relevant images from the duplicate card I was about to delete, I never multi-tagged the card I kept. I did this with duplicates that were exclusive to the the surgery deck only; duplicates between surgery and another specialty, like IM, were not touched at that time and I did end up multi-tagging those cards later on. This was done at the beginning of third-year before I even considered overhauling Dorian. It may not even be enough to mention this, but I did anyways for transparency. I'm gonna try to address this later on.There were duplicates identified between whatever card and a card associated with the UW assessments, Step 2 NBMEs, and the Free 120. Instead of multi-tagging these cards, I removed the duplicate tag entirely and kept them in the deck. I did not want any indication that I card I was studying could show up on those assessments so as to avoid any artificial increase in those assessments when I do take them. So, just know that those duplicates are in the deck, but not identifiedFor FM, I followed the a guide created by FMStudent on which OME videos to watch. The FM OME subdeck thus has OME cards that that one could watch while on a 6-8 week rotation per the guide. There are three OME videos listed that don't have tagged cards currently: Vaccines and Confidence Intervals under Biostats and Lung Cancer under Pulmonology. The short of it is I still need to do the tagging for those three videos, but there is already a good tagging scheme for Biostats under IM that does not follow the OME schema (the Lung Cancer video never had cards, so I need to quality check the cards I imported from Quizlet). All this is to say, these are some issues that I will address but were not enough to not release the deck as is.Random notes: Cervical Cancer Intro + Cervical Cancer OME videos are singularly tagged; same goes for the multiple Vaginal Bleeding videos. I've added a bunch of "True or False" cards so far mainly under FM Amboss; I find these cards help me review factoids quicker, but admittedly I still need to quality-check my own cards as well since I will delete a card that I thought was good at the time when it was not really. If you find the card questionable absolutely feel free to delete, but I usually make the card if it is a fact that AMBOSS highlights I should have known. I added several MSK cards from B&B to the OME cards which I had found incomplete. Also, I use the AMBOSS Add-on, and sometimes the card does not have a phrase that can be linked to AMBOSS so I often go to AMBOSS and find the proper terminology (Eg. card on "neck trauma" not highlighted, but rephrased as "penetrating neck trauma" which can be linked to the AMBOSS Library). I don't screen each card intentionally for this, but I have done this enough to warrant mention.For Psychiatry, Dorian's original subdecks did not follow the OME organization, but instead followed the FA Psychiatry Clerkship book which I continued to build on. How I did it -- I had the PDF of it open, review the chapter quickly, and then look over the OME Psychiatry videos that would overlap with the given FA Psych chapter and go watch the videos. Truthfully, I did not watch many of the OME Pysch videos only because the FA book was good enough for me.If you find mistakes, please let me know and I apologize in advance for them but keep in mind this is a work-in-progress deck!I think other things that people see in the deck will be self-explanatory.Hopefully this iteration of the Dorian deck can help others out, and I'll be sure to release my complete version sometime in the summer.Good Luck!Link: Cheesy Dorian (1GB)Edit 1: Someone asked me about workflow with this deck. I will offer an example: when I started my OB rotation, I went to the browser, went to dorian::obgyn, and from there I would click dorian::obgyn::amboss, highlight all cards, click "change deck", and move all cards into the OBGYN AMBOSS subdeck. I repeated this process of moving a given tag into its actual sundeck for the other tags. Since cards are multi-tagged, the goal was to have all dorian::obgyn tagged cards under one deck. Now, there are cards that are multi-tagged only within OBGYN (ie no tagging from another specialty), and in that case it is entirely up to you. For me, since I did OME during the first week of a rotation, I would always click dorian::obgyn::ome last and move it into the OME subdeck so as to ensure that all cards tagged with dorian::obgyn::ome + some other tag would be seen during my first week. There is no correct way to do this -- you decide what is important to you, but ultimately when you begin a new rotation you will have to do the initial process of selecting all cards under whatever rotation you are on and moving cards all tagged cards under one roof so to speak -- which is what happened when I began my next rotation, Family Medicine. I ended up having like 500 or so review cards simply because they were also tagged under dorian::obgyn and I just moved them under the Family Medicine deck.Edit 2: Another unusual point I'd like to highlight. I found many duplicates that were not tagged as duplicates only because of small differences in the cards, such as a comma, extra space, or having an image in the Front section. I did my best to remove these, but a lot of times its just recognition if I've seen a card before ("Hmm, didn't I see this card elsewhere", then I would go search for it in the browser and sure enough there was another card nearly identical that was not tagged as a duplicate!)Edit 3: With respect to the October 2019 Dorian deck update, I found the tagging in that deck inadequate and images were not retained between different duplicates. I did not want to put my thoughts about this deck in my post because I thought it would be unfair to criticize another deck, but the user who posted it said it was okay to share my own thoughts. It also would not address the issue of what to do when going onto another rotation, and believe my tagging overhaul addresses that challenge.Edit 4: Here's the second, updated version of the deck!
